HOW

AVALANCHE IN SWISS ALPS

DESTROYS ALL THINGS.

A mountain climber, in discussing the accounts of recent avalanches in the southern Alps, resulting in destruction and death, says:

The cause of these sudden descents is not far to seek. On the higher slopes there have been six or eight weeks of clear, almost uninterrupted frosts, which have caused the existing snow to become loose and powdery.

Now, under pressure of the recent heavy falls of fresh snow, this loose under snow has given way, and vast masses of it, gathering volume every moment, are plunging down the mountain sides, overwhelming sheep and unfortunate tourists and burying all that comes in their path.

This type of powdery avalanche, serious enough to life and limb, is as nothing compared with the real avalanche built up of accumulations of snow that may have commenced years ago.

These vast accumulations occur on the plateaus or less steep inclines. The pressure of each succeeding season's snow turns the under snow to ice, and winter after winter the mass increases in weight and volume.

A moment arrives when, owing either to pressure from higher levels or the mass growing so immense, it overcomes any resistance that holds it. Or, due to an exceptionally mild summer, the lowest stratum against the mountain side is melted and a sort of water cushion is formed upon which the whole glides forward.

There are other causes, but for some reason such as these the colossal mass commences to move slowly downward toward the valley. If the pace is slow it is known as a creeping avalanche and can be kept under constant observation. There is little immediate danger from it and peasants and farmers can be warned of the approaching peril.

Sometimes, however, an avalanche of this type will within a few hours of having become loosened hurl itself downward with the speed of an express train and a noise exceeding all imagination. Nothing can withstand it. Farms and homesteads are swept away or buried, forests of fir and pine are crashed down or carried away like so much straw; cattle, rocks, railways are all carried before it until either it comes to rest in lower levels or hurls itself over perpendicular walls of rock into the valleys beneath.

Advertise it for sale in the columns of The Enterprise.

LADIES AID

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church was held in the balcony room of the church Thursday, September 17, with a good attendance.

At this meeting officers were elected and general activities for the fall and winter months were discussed.

The society is in a thriving condition and last year made an unusual showing under their efficient president, Mrs. David Woodruff, who was re-elected, as were the rest of the officers, as follows:

First Vice-president, Mrs. John Phelps.

Second Vice-president, Mrs. Willard Adams.

Secretary, Miss Mae Foster.

Treasurer, Mrs. John Sherlock. All pledges were reported paid up to date. It was voted to give a New England supper in the near future, the date to be announced later.

A rummage sale, Saturday, November 7.

Their bazaar will be held this year, Thursday, December 3.

Potato America's Gift

Although Ireland is popularly credited with having given the "Irish potato" to the world, this credit rightfully belongs to America. The Irish people were the first to quickly accept the potato as an article of food. This vegetable is supposed to have been brought north from Peru. It was growing in the North Atlantic coast when the earliest explorers came.

An Enterprise Limer will sell it.

Farmington

A PROPHECY

Ten Years Hence

every east and west section line road in the territory bounded by Farmington on the North, Plymouth and Northville on the West, Michigan Avenue on the South and the Detroit City Limits on the East, will be great business thoroughfares or Super Highways, 120 feet wide. There will be far more traffic upon these avenues than there is on Grand River Avenue between Farmington and Redford at the present time because Detroit will have doubled its population and the land lying between will be much more densely populated.

That is, in a nutshell, our reason for being so positive that Frontage upon these Thoroughfares will then be worth more than Grand River Avenue Frontage is today. In fact, we believe it will be worth approximately twice as much—and Grand River Avenue Frontage between Farmington and Redford is now selling for an average of $125.00 per foot.

This is why Subdividers are finding a ready market for their frontage along these highways at $50.00 per foot.

For many years conservative people, lacking vision, have been calling investors in this type of property "suckers" but in the great majority of cases these "suckers" have realized more than 100 per cent per annum on the actual money invested.

Today, we are announcing the sale of 700 feet of Frontage on the Base Line Road just off the Farmington Road, at

$22.50 per foot with 10 per cent down and it has a depth, 250 feet.

$10.00 will make a reservation. Be sure and see us today. Tomorrow may be too late and you cannot afford to neglect the season's best investment opportunity.
