

Botsford hosts ethnic festival

The Botsford Inn, in cooperation with Farmington schools, is presenting an Ethnic Extravaganza at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 30 in the garden courtyard of the inn.

Featuring a musical presentation representing the rich cultural background that exists in Farmington, this production is presented by the Bilingual Department of Farmington Schools.

Acts reflecting the heritages of Japan, China, Korea, India, the Middle East and Eastern Europe will highlight the show.

This presentation of dance and songs is a product of an annual bilingual open house planned each year by Director Haruono Alameddine. It has been such a success, the Botsford Inn has decided to display the colorful festival on its grounds to the people of the Farmington area as part of their Michigan Week.

IN PROGRESS earlier this week.

The Botsford Inn will host a diorama competition on May 29. Sixth graders of the Farmington Public Schools will be creating dioramas depicting various Michigan attractions. The winners of each school will be on display in the main Ballroom of the Inn.

At 7 p.m., judging of the creations will take place and prizes will be awarded to the top three grand winners courtesy of the Botsford Inn. First prize will be a $100 savings bond, second prize will receive a $50 bond and third prize a $25 bond. The dioramas will remain on display through the 31st of May.

Judges for the competition will be William F. McLaughlin, president of the Metropolitan Detroit Conventin & Visitors' Bureau; Steve Barnaby, editor of the Farmington Observer; JoAnn Soronen, director of the Farmington Chamber of Commerce; and Lewis Schulman, superintendent, Farmington Public Schools.

'Enlightening experience'

To the editor:

It was a very enlightening and educational experience attending the 1984 Community Spirit Luncheon hosted by the Farmington YMCA. I was pleased to be part of this group. Thanks to the YMCA for hosting the luncheon.

In the amount of time we were together, we certainly did not have enough of an opportunity to share everything that our agencies provide. For the last several years the City of Farmington Hills Department of Special Services has become a resource center for services within the Farmington Hills area. This special function provides information on agencies offering special services. With this philosophy, we have created a special resource file of all activities so that we can respond to the inquiries that are made on a daily basis to "City Hall."

It is with this in mind that I would request you to continue to send information regarding your agencies to my attention so that we may continue updating our resource file and be able to communicate with the area residents as to the many services that are being provided within our community. In addition, with this information we will be able to direct the various inquiries to the appropriate agencies with the least amount of confusion.

Thank you for your continued cooperation. We look forward to working with you in the future.
