

AAU team gears for national tournament

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Amidst the euphoria was a brief flash of panic.

Ed Kavanaugh's Metro AAU girls basketball team Sunday June 3 to earn a trip to the National Junior Olympic Basketball Tournament in Clovis, N.M. It was a happy scene. Char Govan, a junior at Ladywood High School, was being hugged and congratulated by her teammates. Her 33 points spurred the Metro team to an unexpected 38-16 win in the state AAU championship.

Then the panic set in.

"I hear the Metro team won't be able to go to the nationals," said a member of the Michigan team.

"What?" was the stunned response.

THE NATIONAL tournament was scheduled for the week of July 13-20, the exact same week that Kavanaugh had set for his Schoolcraft College Girls Basketball Camp — a seemingly unresolvable conflict.

Kavanaugh was unruffled. "We're going. Don't worry about that," he said. The following Monday, Kavanaugh, the young energetic coach of both Ladywood and Schoolcraft women's teams, began making arrangements. One week later, the conflict was resolved.

girls basketball

"We're going to have the camp July 23-25 and we're going to extend it one hour each day. It'll run from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.," he said.

No problem.

Meanwhile, Kavanaugh wrapped up his national tourney roster. Unable to make the trip to Clovis were Metro team members Bev White of Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy and Karen MacDonald of Melvindale.

Joining the team are three players from the Michigan team. Lisa Harvey, an all-state guard from Benton Harbor who scored 17 points in the AAU state championship, Alyssa McGee, from Flint Northwestern and the sister of Pam and Paula McGee of USC fame, and Angie Middleton from Detroit Murray-Wright.

OTHERS ON the squad include Observer & Eccentric standouts Sarah Baatford (Mercy-University of Michigan), Allana Cummings (Troy Athens), Govan, Trish White and Emily Wagner (Ladywood), and Alyse Fortune and Rhonda Lancaster (Farmington).

Kavanaugh is no stranger to the national tournament. He was invited to go last year to help coach the Michigan team. Michigan finished fifth in the nation.

"It's a great experience," he said. "It's the best group of talent I've ever seen. It's really overwhelming."

Kavanaugh says his team is every bit as good, and perhaps a little better, than the team that went last year.

"We have a lot more depth this year," he said. "We have a good representative group. It's a nice mixture of student-athletes. I'm looking for a lot to happen."

He's also looking for some help — financial help. The cost of the trip is $9,000. The players need sponsors. Any one interested in making a tax-deductible donation should make out a check to the Michigan AAU Association and send it to Schoolcraft Community College in care of Ed Kavanaugh: 18500 Haggerty, Livonia 48152.

"Margie was the mainstay of the Canton defense," said Morgan. "She's quick to the ball and soccer-smart, the result of many years of playing experience."

The senior fullback also contributed one goal and five assists to the Chiefs' offense.

Cheryl Gallardo, defender, Livonia Stevenson: A senior, this was Gallardo's final season at Stevenson, and there was added pressure she missed much of last season with a stress fracture.

She came back to enjoy "a fantastic season" according to Divens. Other coaches agreed, voting her to first team All-WLAA and All-State honors.

"She's a strong defensive player," said Divens. "She has excellent ball control and excellent movement with the ball. She also has a strong header and passes the ball up the field real well."

Gallardo had four goals and two assists as a defender, finishing her career at Stevenson with eight goals and three assists.

Doreen Beagle, goalie, Livonia Stevenson: Beagle had the kind of season most goalkeepers only dream about: 11 shutouts and a 0.65 goals against average, stats that helped earn her a berth on the All-State's second team.

"She has the ability to cover the whole goal area," said Divens. "She possesses good leadership and communication skills — especially with the defense."

Divens also noted that Beagle has "excellent diving ability" and is "a very tough player," traits that helped her post 23 shutouts and a 0.68 goals against average over the past two seasons for Stevenson, state champs last year and runners-up this year.
