

Farmington Hills police were posted at the entrance of the Farmington Brook subdivision in Farmington Hills as members of the Building Trades union protested wage and hiring practices of the contractors constructing homes in the subdivision.

mail, freight and luggage into the front and back baggage compartments un-

"We don't have to lift much or manually load the craft unless there is a power failure. Then it can be a problem."

Working at American Airlines wasn't bad at all, Gibson found out. In fact, he met an American Airlines ticket agent there who today is his wife and mother of their three children.

HE WOULDN'T change his job for anything, not even for a promotion to crew chief. "I really enjoy my work and am satisfied."

"I don't want the responsibility of someone else," he said of the crew chief position. "There's too many things that can happen, like injuries and improper loading. I want to be responsible for myself only."

Does Gibson ever have the urge to get behind the controls of a DC 10 and fly off into the sunset? "No," he laughed. "My fantasy is to pilot a helicopter."

"I am fascinated with helicopters because of their ability to move laterally in the air."

And what about that nickname, "Hoot?"

"Guys I work with here and in the service gave me that name after Hoot Gibson the cowboy, and it's stuck to me ever since."

Jewelry Gittings
by Allen DuQuet

Rubies, the birthstone for July, usually come from Southeast Asia. Fried for their rich, intensely red color, rubies have been found in only two of the United States, Montana and North Carolina.

Perhaps you know some lucky person you wish to delight with a ruby, a diamond, or other piece of lovely jewelry. Come in and let us show you our collection.

Cheap labor challenged still under investigation, he added.

Meanwhile, a restraining order was issued June 22 prohibiting picketers and builders from interfering with each other, Nichols said. Although the restraining order at that time did not limit the number of picketers, the carpenters Wednesday "were enjoined to a certain extent," Wood said. The restraining order was further extended to limit the number of picketers, he added.

Approximately 90 percent of those working for wages allegedly below union scale are either union members or former members, Wood said.

These workers, he said, are working for "way less" because "they don't want to starve. And they are being taken advantage of."

The problem stems from the last down-turn of the housing economy when many workers took jobs that paid below union scale rather than face unemployment. Now that the economy has improved, the unions are facing a loss of membership and bitterness because the situation has become a case of "union brother against union brother," said an individual close to the protest who refused to remain anonymous.

While the picketing is continuing, Wood said he is hoping to meet with the builders sometime this week to find a solution to the problem.
