

Stony Creek still draws 'em

Stony Creek Statepark marks its 25th anniversary this month, though park superintendent William L. Toll says, "The celebration is planned — it's outside the usual." The 4,400-acre regional park is northeast of Rochester on a 900-acre lake formed by two dams. One of 13 Huron-Clinton metroparks operated by a five-county authority, Stony Creek has attracted an estimated 30 million visitors over the years. It boasts picnic facilities, a beach, boat launch, boat rental site, 6 1/2-mile paved bike trail, shore fishing and the popular Geypoint dining site.
