Irons are foundation

This, my second in a series on how to improve your golf game, concerns iron play.

On almost any golf hole, an iron club will most likely be used. Iron play is broken into three categories:

- Long irons, which are the two, three and four clubs (and the one iron for the very confident golfer);
- Middle irons, or numbers five, six and seven;
- And short irons, which are the eight and nine and the pitching wedge.

All iron shots should be struck on a descending blow (on the downswing), meaning the ball position is of the utmost importance. For long irons play the ball slightly left of center and maintain an even tempo throughout the swing.

Most high handicap golfers lack confidence that the loft on the club will pick up the ball. They want to help the club get the ball in the air. Consequently, their swing becomes jerky and fixed.

FOR MEDIUM IRONS, play the ball in the center of the stance, using slight-

AAU girls bounced by nation's best

Michigan's top women cagers went to New Mexico last week to play in the AAU Junior Olympic Nationals, and the biggest thing they learned was that they still have a long way to go if they are to compete on a national level.

Michigan's AAU squad, comprised of the best 18 and under players this state has to offer, lost both games, sending the team to an early exit.

They were beaten by a hometown Clovis, New Mexico squad, 84-76 in the opener before getting bounced out of the tournament by Rocky Mountain (Colo.) 94-78.

It wasn't Michigan's inferiority on the court so much as the Michigan AAU team's entered in the tournament have been working since April to prepare, while his team didn't start practicing until June.

"We found that these other teams prepare more in advance and much more seriously," he said. "In other states, the AAU tournament is the epitome of girls basketball. This year, we didn't even have our state tournament until June. Next year, it will be held earlier. It will give us the opportunity to prepare more."

THE MICHIGAN team features a number of local players. They include Farmington's Alyse Fortune and Rhonda Lancaster, Livonia Ladywood's Char Govan, Emily Wagner and Trish White, Farmington Our Lady of Mercy's Sarah Barford (who is headed for the University of Michigan on a basketball scholarship), and Troy Athens junior standout Alana Cummings.

Govan poured in 15 points and Barford 14 to lead Michigan in its opening loss. New Mexico won the game from the foul line, connecting on an impressive 29 of 35 free throws. Kavanagh said it was like playing a team that had the home court advantage.

Detroit tops Metro stars

By Robert McElhenney special writer

In a fast-paced game of breakaway baskets and slam dunks, Ed Wilcox's 30 points proved instrumental in the Detroit AAU team's 99-88 triumph over Metro AAU Monday at Schoolcraft College.

The game was a preliminary to the 7-Up National AAU team's game against the Michigan AAU squad. The nationals won handily, 145-60.

Wilcox, from Oak Park, was one of four Detroit AAU players to score in double figures. Richard Hunter, from Detroit Westera, netted 29, and Phillip Miller, a Detroit Southeastern grad headed for Saginaw Valley State, scored 16 while earning the game's Most Valuable Player honors.

Bradley Turner added 13 points and Sam Johnson nine.

"Miller was a key player," said Detroit coach Glen Donahue. "He made
