

Chamber ensemble in concert Aug. 8

Celloist Karen Wingert will be the soloist when Longacre Chamber Ensemble performs in concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Farmington Community Center, 24705 Farmington Road.

All professional musicians, the group organized in the spring of this year to perform chamber music of the Baroque and Romantic periods, and have chosen the name Longacre in honor of early residents of the home which is now the community center, as well as the rehearsal and performing headquarters of the ensemble.

The ensemble has 11 members, conducted by David Levine, a cellist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Concertmaster is violinist Mary Stolberg.

Other violinists are Tamara Goldfaden, Mark Kirschman and Cheryl Petrie.

Violists are Barbara Stolberg and Terry Feldman.

Celloists are Wingert, with Greg Stawick and Naomi Levine. The ensemble is rounded out with guitarist Peter Tobias.

Most of the members are also affiliated with other performing musical groups, including Birmingham Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra and Toledo Symphony, and most are also teachers of music.

The Aug. 8 program will include the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 3, the Vivaldi Cello Concerto Grosso, Opus 3, No. 9, and a Mendelssohn Octet in E Flat.

Wingert, who has studied music at University of Michigan and is a former student of Samuel Magas, will solo in the Vivaldi piece.

Admission is $5, or $1.50 for children and seniors.

MYI in concert

Area teens who toured Australia with Musical Youth International (MYI) this summer will give two concerts this weekend which wind up the season.

At 7:30 p.m. Friday the group will appear in concert in St. Valentine Catholic Church, 35 Beechdale, south of Five Mile.

At 2:30 p.m. Sunday, the concert is sponsored by MYI alumni in Hill Auditorium, on University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor.

Eighteen youth from Farmington and Farmington Hills were involved in the Australian tour.

Botsford offers class to cardiac patients

Botsford General Hospital's Department of Health Promotion is offering a course called "Cardiac Management" to persons with cardiovascular problems and their families who want to learn how to manage their disease.

The classes meet 7-9 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning Sept. 11 for five weeks, focusing on nutrition, medication management and lifestyle change.

Fee for the course is $40, and registrations are being taken by the hospital's Department of Health Promotion, 471-8090.

In the U.S. two people succumb every minute from some type of heart disease. One fourth of those who die of heart attacks are under 65.

More than 40-million Americans have some form of cardiovascular disease, and of these 34 million have high blood pressure, which is the major cause of heart attack and stroke.

"Not all the news is bad, however," said Traynyn Huyser, a health services representative for the hospital. "More than 10 million cardiac patients have survived their first attack and recovered sufficiently to return to useful and rewarding lives."

OTHER NEWS ON the positive side comes from studies completed by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute which show a steady decline in the number of people struck fatally by heart disease.

Advanced technology and better techniques for rescue and care of the disease are credited for the decline, but the most important factor contributing to this trend is increased understanding and control of heart-attack risk factors.
