Clarenceville contract settled

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

The Clarenceville School District has come to contract terms with nine administrators and 35 non-certified personnel for the 1984-85 school year, leaving only 18 secretaries without a settlement.

The administrators' raises were from 5 percent to 7.75 percent, according to Ed Saliz, assistant superintendent of business, while the non-certified employees received raises of five percent.

The administrators received raises based on a complex formula that considers education level, seniority, experience and the number of students supervised.

Saliz said he expects to come to terms with the secretaries when talks resume after the summer recess. "We haven't had an opportunity because they've been on summer vacation," he said. "We've never had a problem. They've always been congenial."

The raises were approved last week at the board of education's regular meeting. They were retroactive to July 1. The board last month voted to offer the district's 102 teachers 5 percent pay hikes for the coming year. The union will vote on the offer later this month.
