Funds available for education

Veterans serving between August 1964 and May 1975 who did not use up their original education benefits have another chance to attend college.

Under the Delimiting Date Extension Program, the federal government has allocated $20 million nationwide for qualifying veterans who are unemployed, hold low-paying jobs, or lack training. Funds will be awarded on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The program is designed to provide marketable skills to individuals who wish to earn an Associate degree in a vocational area. While 50 percent of the student's course work must be in approved vocational programs, the remaining half may include general education classes which provide skills in areas such as English and math development.

Loan money for Delimiting Date Extension students who choose Applied Technology programs is also available. Veterans interested in taking advantage of the Delimiting Date Extension Program must first contact the Regional Veterans Administration Office (1-800-482-0740) to determine if they qualify.

Initially, tuition and other expenses are paid by eligible participants. Benefit payments are then provided by the V.A.

Veterans who wish to enroll for the fall semester in any of over 80 vocational programs at Oakland Community College should contact Auburn Hills Campus counselor Randy Sloan for details. He can be reached at 853-4261 or 853-4269.

Late registration is today, Friday, Sept. 4, 5 and 6. Classes begin today.
