

second runs

Tom Panzenhagen

"The Postman Always Rings Twice" (1946), 11:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 113 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.
 The controversy surrounding director Bob Rafelson's sexually explicit, 1981 remake of "The Postman Always Rings Twice" from the sexually implicit James M. Cain novel, has died down now. So viewers with thinking caps may want to take another look at the comparatively tame original, which surfaces Saturday for a rare TV run. Lana Turner, John Garfield and Cecil Kellaway star in the sub-quent Jessica Lange, Jack Nicholson and John Colicos roles, respectively. Don't expect too much.
 Rating: $2.50.

"In the Heat of the Night" (1967), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 56. Originally 109 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Good	$3
Excellent	$4

Is there a pattern here? The merits of director Norman Jewison's "In the Heat of the Night" — Oscars for best film, screenplay and actor Rod Steiger — are known. There can be no doubt this is an especially well-wrought, riveting film. The curious thing is that it's about a black man investigating a crime in dominantly white, Southern environs.

Jewison's newest film, "A Soldier's Story" is about a black man investigating a crime in dominantly white, Southern environs. Establishment of that certain pattern is not meant to slight either film. It is curious, though, how successful directors frequently migrate to familiar territory. Steiger, Sidney Poitier, Warren Oates and Lee Grant star.
 Rating: $3.50.

"Tall Gunner Joe" (1976), Tuesday night on Ch. 7. Originally 144 minutes. TV time slot: 185 minutes.
 How ironic of Ch. 7 to run "Tall Gunner Joe," the rise and fall of U.S. Sen. Joe McCarthy, on election night. If only election winners would tune in. Peter Boyle is outstanding as McCarthy in this overly long film that's best when concerned with the maniacal senator's rise. Patricia Neal, John Forsythe, Burgess Meredith, Heather Menzies, Ned Beatty, Jean Stapleton and John Carradine co-star.
 Rating: $3.05.

Rain's Comin'

The Rainmaker has the gift of bringing rain and making other dreams come true. Danny Hicks (left) is Starbuck, the title role of "The Rainmaker," and James Glossman is Jim, in the Actors Alliance Theatre Company production. Performances run through Sunday, Nov. 18, at the Lyceum International in Southfield. For more information, call 842-1326.
