Stocking stuffers

Rediscover your grocery store

This Christmas, your search for stocking stuffers needn't take you farther than your local grocery store.

In fact, every day you see items that make unique Christmas gifts, you just have to use your imagination.

If you are like most people, you do your shopping armed with a list of needed items and a determination to resist impulse buying.

But this holiday season, take another look at some of those impulse temptations. They might make appreciated stocking gifts.

In the gourmet section, you can select imported coffees and teas available in small tins, or fancy stuffed olives. Even a gift-wrapped jalapeno pepper — for those on your list who like it hot. A piece of exotic fruit adds color and taste.

FOR AN ADDED economical benefit, don't overlook the regular food section of your supermarket when filling Christmas stockings.

For example, you can gift wrap two or three economy-sized boxes of cookies for each stocking. Candies and nuts bought by the pound and broken into smaller units provide similar savings.

In addition to foods, supermarkets today offer many other inexpensive personal and household items. Minibottles of shampoo and conditioner sold as samples for under 50 cents are also appealing.

For variety, wooden spoons or other kitchen gadgets are often in the $1 to $2 range. With a paperback book, or even several bright-colored ball-point pens, your Christmas stocking will be bursting with interesting and useful presents.

Rediscovering the unique gifts available at the supermarket can be fun, but the best part is that you can fill a Christmas stocking list in one easy stop. And you don't have to break your piggy bank to do it.
