Both parties have a strong interest in this race, in fact, as. James M. Hare is stepping down after 16 years in office as a Democrat. The post is con-sidered the second most powerful in terms of political influence in the state, with its large numbers of patronage positions of branch managers under its jurisdiction.

under its jurisdiction.

Democrats want desperately to retain the power, because so many of them are in danger of losing branch managerships long held. A struggle within the party has fomented since Hare's retirement announcement, with the Branch Managers Association claiming the central party hash' placed enough emphasis on the secretary of state campaign.
