Tax hike proposed for improvements

By Joenne Maliszewski
staff writer

If Farmington Hills officials adopt a $16.6 million 1985-86 budget and proposed tax increase next month, enough revenue would be generated to finance capital projects listed in the first year of the city's six-year improvements program.

"It should be noted that the necessity of increasing this millage rate is to provide sufficient revenues so as to move forward with many badly needed capital improvements which are all directed to benefit the citizens and taxpayers of our community," City Manager William Costick said in an introductory report on the proposed 1985-86 budget.

A passerby in the Plims car, Charles Siros, was injured slightly in the accident. Siros was treated at Botsford General Hospital for a broken arm and then discharged.

"We didn't do him," Miller said. "We had no legal right to because he wasn't a driver. The only reason we got the

The recommended rate of 1.1 mills for capital improvements would generate $1,220,000. Added to that anticipated sum would be approximately $1.5 million from existing reserves and funds, according to Costick.

The CITY'S improvements program, developed and updated each year by the planning commission, represents a listing of needed projects on a priority basis over a six-year period.

Following a public hearing on the proposed 1985-86 budget at 8 p.m. May 22, a slide show will be presented describing the recommended capital improvements.

In 1985-86, the improvements program calls for implementing the following major projects which have been in the planning stages for years:

- Construction of a new police building and accompanying other improvements to the city administration site at 11 Mile and Orchard Lake roads.
- Construction of the longstanding

Caddell Drain project which would involve storm sewer work in the city's southwest section.

- Reconstruction and widening of 12 Mile Road, from Farmington Road to 1,000 feet east of Orchard Lake Road.

Other recommended projects in 1985-86 include:

- Drainage improvements in the Northwestern Highway/Franklin Knolls subdivision area.
- Expansion of fire department headquarters.
- Construction of sidewalks.
- Road improvements.

slightly over last year, Costick indicated.

On the revenue side of the proposed 1985-86 budget, the city will be generating more revenue from property taxes; an increase in new building permits and increased state shared revenue.

In addition, city officials are proposing to reduce the amount taken out of fund balance (or surplus) to support the operating budget. For 1985-86, city officials propose to allocate $310,140 compared to the $528,000 recommended for the current budget. In 1984-85, surplus was also used to pay for some capital improvements.

"We believe, that given the uncertainty of Michigan's economy and the numerous fluctuations and cycles that seem to be a recurring trend that it is in the best interest of the city to reduce its reliance on appropriations from fund balance for operating purposes," Costick indicated in his report.

tor of community relations, said Tuesday.

Miller declined to reveal Plims' level of blood alcohol content.

"She was intoxicated. I'll say that much or else we wouldn't have gotten a manslaughter warrant," Under Michigan law, blood alcohol content of .10 percent is the standard for a charge of operating under the influence of liquor. Smith's blood was sent to the Michigan State Police laboratory in Lansing for analysis.

"He didn't do anything wrong," Miller said. "He was just going down the road. No charges on Smith."

"We've got the blood test results," he said. "They all came back negative except for Laura Plims."

A passerby in the Plims car, Charles Siros, was injured slightly in the accident. Siros was treated at Botsford General Hospital for a broken arm and then discharged.

"We didn't do him," Miller said. "We had no legal right to because he wasn't a driver. The only reason we got the others was because of their hospital records.

"Legally, all we have a right to do is get blood tests from drivers. Legally, all we can do is the drivers and that's all we need to know."

Talk of corridor continues

"Traffic flows very smoothly, and you don't have problems. Obviously, you have to compromise."

Adams said his concern was "providing reasonable access," not only to the immediate area but also "to areas north of here that have potential for future development."
