

Chef Famie treats kids to a taste of French cuisine

French Club funds, "reducing the kids' bill as much as we could."

"We have a nice mixture of boys and girls here," Gearhart said. "Eating, of course, always brings them out of the woodwork."

Debbie Cortez, a senior and French Club president, agreed the meal was a good one.

"I thought it was really good," she said after the dessert plates had been cleared away. "I liked it a lot. I thought it was really worth our money."

For Famie, preparing a meal for the students was enjoyable.

"I enjoy doing these things for kids," he said, taking a break from his kitchen duties. "I do college lectures, things like that."

"I enjoy teaching. I enjoy passing on any knowledge I may have. I get a great deal of satisfaction from that."

THE STAFF at Raphael's includes Achille Blanche, the maître d', Glen Garney, sous chef, Scott Schaffer, sous chef, Steve Polere, pastry chef, and others.

Famie and his staffers donated their time Monday night.

"Everybody is," he said. "It's a lot of work. It's very hard, and it's nice that they do that. None of them punched in."

Many hours of preparation went into Monday's meal for the students.

"We had salads to make, we had desserts to make," Famie said. "They don't come out of a box."

"It was a lot of work. Even in this business, sometimes you don't have time to eat."
