Memorial show exhibited

An exhibit of the paintings of the late Dr. Ricardo Rivas is now on display in Farmington Hills City Hall, Orchard Lake and 11 Mile roads, and will remain through June. Rivas died in his West Bloomfield home in March.

He was born in Uruguay, became a naturalized U.S. citizen 20 years ago and practiced medicine in this area until his retirement five years ago.

His latent talent, and interest in painting, emerged gradually during the last year of his life when he attended oil painting classes taught by members of Farmington Artists Club in Farmington Hills Senior Adult Center and other classes through West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation Department.

During this time, painting occupied much of his leisure time, and he completed 15 large works in acrylics.

The subject matter of his works are mainly related to incidents or settings familiar to his life.

Class set for expectant parents

Oakland County Health Division will offer a series of six Expectant Parent Classes beginning Tuesday, June 4 in the Southfield office of the Health Division, 27725 Greenfield.

Topics will include maternal physical changes, good nutrition, growth and development of the fetus and the baby, labor and delivery, infant care and parenting.

The Health Division advises enrollment as early in pregnancy as possible.
