50 Madonna Student Nurses Receive Caps

Caring for people is a hallmark of both the profession of nursing and the obligation of citizenship, Philip H. Power, publisher of The Observer Newspapers, told students and parents at the annual capping ceremony Sunday at Madonna College.

Power was the featured speaker at the ceremony which saw 50 Madonna students receive their caps.

"As nurses, your training is to be a professional in caring for people," the publisher noted.

"But caring for people does not stop on the inside of the plate glass doors of a hospital," he went on. "Indeed, it seems strange to think that a concern with people which is so clearly involved in your decision to become nurses is the sort of thing that can be split between the hospital and the real world."

POWER POINTED out that as nurses the students will be serving Livonia, Farmington, Plymouth and other cities, while residing there.

"As citizens of these communities your obligation is clear," he reminded them, "both because of your training and your high commitment to caring for people. Your potential for community service is just as great."

The talk followed greetings from Sisters Mary Humilis and Mary Louanne of the Madonna nursing department. In the ceremony that followed, candles were lit and the nurses took their Florence Nightingale pledge to serve humankind.

Seniors receiving their nursing stripe numbered 22. They were Jane Anderson, Janet Bazner, Carol Budzyn, Diann Caceta, Rosemary Chrapak, Catherine Dornes, Catherine Forbes, Joan Francoline, Carol Haddad, Beverly Hild, Margaret Jaskolski, Patricia Kollar, Susan Kuhnert.

OTHERS WERE Theodora Mykiewicz, Sister M. Collette, Patricia Blumacki, Geraldine Rutledge, Sister M. Kenneth Schall, Rosalie Sieber, Pauline Stefanick, Sister M. Jacqueline Sosnowski and Carolyn Zielinski.

Seniors receiving their first nursing stripe were Maxine Anderson, Patricia Blumacki, Geraldine Rutledge, Sister M. Kenneth Schall, Rosalie Sieber, Pauline Stefanick, Sister M. Jacqueline Sosnowski and Carolyn Zielinski.

Others were Sharon Matoski, Darlene Miller, Judith Nowak, Janet Piaszek, Susan Piosol, Joanne Redouty, Diane Spamer, Louise Suchyia, Jacqueline Turlo, Mary Zielinski, Deborah Whitting and Judith Czajka.

Dinner Set

The Lutheran Ladies Auxiliary for the Deaf will serve the annual chicken dinner, Frankfurt-style, in the Lutheran School for the Deaf auditorium, on Friday, Sept. 20, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The school is located at 6561 E. Nevada.

Observer Publisher Tells Of Editorial Dept. Shifts

Publisher Philip H. Power today announced the appointments of three new editors and other changes in staff assignments on the Observer Newspapers.

The reorganization is a step toward a new editorial emphasis developed over the past year.

"We not only want to make the Observer Newspapers the best possible from a general news standpoint, but we want them to be closer to the communities they serve," Power said.

THE development brought the creation of a new position, that of Roving Editor, and the assignment of former Plymouth editor W.W. Edgar to that slot.

Edgar, a veteran of the newspaper business including the sports editorship of the Detroit Free Press, has worked in Livonia, Redford and Plymouth. His Stroller column has been a popular feature of the Plymouth Mail & Observer Sunday editions. The column will be carried in both the Wednesday and Sunday editions, and will cover matters of general suburban interest.

Edgar's new far-ranging assignment will take him to all sectors of the area, seeking out the interesting, the human, the day-to-day life of the community.

FRED DeLANO, another veteran of Detroit newspapers, has succeeded Edgar as editor of the Plymouth Mail & Observer. DeLano most recently has worked on the Farmington Enterprise and Observer.

Robert Ameen, who joined Observer Newspapers during the summer after serving as news editor on the Illinois State Journal, at Springfield, succeeds Ralph W. Reed as editor of the Livonia Observer.

Emory Daniels, former editor of the Garden City Observer, returned following his military tour of duty and has been reinstated in that position.

For the past several years, the Garden City Observer and the Westland Observer have been jointly edited by Leonard Poger.

"The growth of the area and the increased demand of the residents for editorial excellence indicate the need for separate editors of the two newspapers," Power said.

In other changes, David Sartori, a staffer at the Redford Observer, has been transferred to his hometown, Farmington, and Mrs. Mary Kay Dineen, a Wayne State University graduate in journalism, has been assigned to succeed him at Redford.

Some of the other featured booths and counters will be the baked sale, lollipop tree and money bear. A fortune teller will be on hand and special campus matters will be shown.

The day's activities will climax with the drawing of stubs for the winning tickets in the raffle held concurrently with the festival. Prizes are $1,000 cash, a Las Vegas weekend for two, a portable color TV and a portable dishwasher.
