

Exhibit extols virtues of America's grand lady

By Doug Funke

The Statue of Liberty, well, part of her, anyway, came to Troy last week for a one-day visit courtesy of Allied Van Lines.

A traveling exhibit titled "Move to Freedom" consists of still photographs, sculptures and a short audio-visual tape presentation of the history of the statue and Ellis Island.

Part of Miss Liberty's torch was also displayed.

The exhibit, hauled around the country essentially in a series of one-night stands, coincides with an effort to restore both national landmarks.

"We have a dual mission," explained George Stanley, manager for the display which stopped behind K mart International headquarters for a corporate showing.

"Of course we're a fund-raiser," he said. "All costs for distribution are borne by Allied. The other part of our mission is education. We do lecture programs, various media programs. We go to schools and talk to community groups."

Profits from the sale of souvenirs and donations are passed along to the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation.

It TAKES ONLY a few minutes to pass through the exhibit, longer if patrons are mesmerized by haunting photographs of immigrants awaiting processing on Ellis Island.

The exhibit is packed with interesting facts. Among them:

- The statue, officially titled Liberty Enlightening the World, was designed and built by Frederic A. Bartholdi starting in 1875. It was initially erected in France, then dismantled in sections and shipped in crates to the United States.
- The statue was dedicated by President Grover Cleveland Oct. 28, 1886.
- The tip of the torch is 151 feet, one inch above Miss Liberty's sandals. It's 305 feet, one inch from the base of foundation to the tip of the torch.
- The poem New Colossus, which includes the immortal lines, "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free . . ." was written by Emma Lazarus in 1893.
- But the words weren't added to the monument on a bronze plaque until 1953.
- More than 17 million immigrants were processed through Ellis Island, most between 1892 and 1954.

THE RESTORATION schedule calls for completion of the Statue of Liberty next year and Ellis Island in 1992.

The biggest misconception people have about the Statue of Liberty is that you could once walk all the way to the torch, Stanley said. Perhaps, unofficially, you could until 1916, he said, but only via unsanctioned ladders and cat-walks.

Many persons also mistakenly believe that the Statue of Liberty is on Ellis Island. Not so. Ellis Island is actually about a half-mile away.

Stanley, who lives on Sylvan Lake, is a one-man operation on tour.

"It's harder work than I ever anticipated — the amount of time we put in set-up, tear down, rehabilitation work," he said.

Stanley said he gets home for a few days every six to nine weeks.

"I enjoy lecturing. I enjoy letting people know about the projects and of course I enjoy travel," he said. "You know, there's a resurgence of patriotism in the U.S. today. I guess I became blasé the last 20 years. I guess I had forgotten how great this country really is."

As of June 26, $170 million has been collected or pledged to the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation, a spokeswoman said. Estimated cost of the restoration is $230 million.

Tax deductible contributions may be sent to the foundation at P.O. Box 1985, New York, N.Y., 10018.

George Stanley holds a piece of the Statue of Liberty as he discusses its history and the fund drive to restore it.

Naval officer to serve in Naval Space Command

U.S. Navy Lt. Dennis M. Price, son of Mrs. Clarence Gould of Farmington Hills, has transferred to the headquarters of the Naval Space Command here to serve as fleet services officer.

Price enlisted with the Navy in July 1966. Following boot camp and Radar-man School at Great Lakes, Ill., he served aboard USS Abnaki, an ocean-going fleet tug, and the destroyer USS Goldsborough before being transferred to Vietnam. He served there for two years with the coastal surveillance force.

Price completed another two-year assignment with headquarters, Support Activity, in Taipei, Taiwan, before returning stateside for recruiting duty in Detroit, and a shipboard tour with destroyer USS Vesole, homeported in Charleston, S.C.

In 1979, Price transferred to Norfolk, Va., where he served with Commander, Surface Group Two, the Naval Security Group Activity and the Fleet Training Unit, Little Creek. He received his officer's commission as an Ensign in April 1981.

His last duty before reporting to the Naval Space Command was on the destroyer USS Coontz where he served as Electronics Material Officer, CIC Officer and Electronic Warfare Officer.

Price lives in Chesapeake, Va.

ARTHRITIS THAT TRAVELS

Certain types of arthritis don't move. Typically in osteoarthritis, if the knees are involved, then it is the knees that hurt day after day; once gout has attacked a joint, that joint is subject to repeated attacks. In contrast, arthritis such as rheumatoid arthritis, psoriasis arthritis, and fibromyalgia are characterized by attacks in which the arthritis "travels." One day the hands are painful, the next day it is the knees, then the pain shifts to the shoulders and neck.

Why this movement occurs is unknown. Physicians have observed that joints previously injured or currently under strain may have impaired resistance to stress and are likely to be targets for inflammation. Beyond this observation, no finding explains why arthritis travels.

Do not become discouraged if your arthritis takes an unexpected and prolonged course to a previously uninvolved joint. Certainly you should not feel that you "did something wrong." Rather, if you have "travelling arthritis," it is best to follow your treatment regimen carefully and accept the changing joint pain as part of your condition.
