It is written
— on the list

I've found myself wondering recently how Joe and I managed to do any vacationing or traveling before we retired. The preparations for our annual September trip to Michigan are taking such an amazing amount of time and space that I ask myself how we ever could get ready and work too.

As the month begins and departure day draws near, we have a list of more than a dozen "To Do" items, none accomplished yet.

Then there's the list, more than 40 lines long, labeled "To Take." Some, but by no means all, already are piled on the couch in the den.

There's a list of where we will be each day and the things we want to do. And menu and shopping lists — they keep getting revised with an eye toward leaving refrigerator and cupboard as empty as possible.

Joe has always been a list-maker and planner-ahead, and in retirement he becomes more meticulous and more determined to leave little to time or memory. For me, the one who never used to have time to make lists, the more careful approach looks better all the time.

pack presents for granddaughter Katie's 4th birthday (now how could we forget those?), and take along a wedding present for Kathy and Jim (because I certainly wasn't going to take it to Arizona when they'd only have to drive it to Michigan).

We've also written down that we'll take bedding and towels for the cottage we'll take for a week. The list also says to take toaster and coffee-maker; they don't have those items at the cottage.

The books we've borrowed from daughter Barb are listed. So are the binoculars and picnic blanket that will be needed for football games. And, because it is written, we'll probably remember this trip the laundry bag and some high-watt bulbs, needed because cottages and motels never are equipped for guests who like to read.

WHAT WILL BE MISSED? We always manage to get away without some important act or possession. But as planning time increases chances for error should go down.

We'll get things unplugged and arranged. We'll have with us the checkbooks and the maps, the toolbox and the address book, the games, the cameras and the cooler.

Hope we don't forget the list.

'Hike for Hearts' benefit set Sept. 21

Hikers, bikers, joggers and runners will set out on a 12-mile course at 10 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 21 at Belle Isle to support Ticker Club's fourth "Hike For Hearts" fund-raiser.

The event, sponsored by Ticker Club to benefit Children's Hospital of Michigan (CHM), started in 1983 in an effort to raise $100,000 to bring computer-assisted postoperative support to the intensive care unit at CHM.

In an attempt to reach that goal the Ticker Club encourages participants to lend their support. There will be free refreshments for everyone and prizes awarded to the five hikers collecting the most donations.

First prize is a video tape recorder; second prize, a 10-speed bike; third prize, a $100 gift certificate from Oak-Ridge Markets; fourth prize, a cordless telephone; and fifth prize, a "blaster box" radio.

To qualify, pledges must be collected and mailed by Oct. 29 to Ticker Club, 3702 Sandburg Drive, Troy 48063.

Interested participants can obtain registration forms and sponsor forms by contacting Bonnie Moulik at 689-7735. Hikers must register before Sept. 15 will qualify for a chance to win a personal AM-FM stereo radio with headphones. All hikers will receive a Ticker Club mug upon registration.

Check-in and late registration begins at 10 a.m. in the casino. In the event of rain, all hikers will receive credit for the complete 20 kilometers.

Ticker Club is a non-profit organization formed to support the cardiology services of Children's Hospital of Michigan.

U.S. Constitution deserves support

Our Constitution has provided the American people with a more enduring and practical government and a greater degree of prosperity than any other people have ever had. The excellence of this document deserves our confidence and support.

Quakerstown Chapter of the American Revolution urges that you celebrate Constitution Week, Sept. 17-23 by studying the basic principles of the Constitution of the United States. Study your Constitution.
