Hospital founder honored

More than 200 physicians from the Midwest met at Botsford General Hospital Monday to listen to a series of lectures updating the principles of pulmonary vascular disease.

According to Bert Rabinowitz, director of the pulmonary division of the Department of Internal Medicine at Botsford, "This lecture series, in which we were able to bring in noted speakers from across the United States and Canada, is presented for two reasons:

available in the field of pulmonary disease and subsequent treatment, and two, simultaneously to honor the memory of the late Allen Zieger, founder of Botsford General Hospital, who passed away just 18 months ago."

The speaker-faculty came from British Columbia, Canada; Houston, Texas; the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor, the Irvine Medical Center in Irvine, Calif.; the University of California at San Francisco; and the Professional Staff at Botsford General Hospital.
