Detroit library serves the deaf

Three telecommunications devices for the deaf are now installed in the Detroit Public Library, 5201 Woodward Ave., and in the Downtown Library, 121 Grand, behind Hudson's, Detroit.

These TDD machines enable hearing-impaired individuals to communicate over the telephone.

Typed messages are transmitted between TDD units using regular telephone lines. The new devices at the library make it possible for the hearing-impaired with access to a TDD to obtain library service over the telephone. The service includes access to out-of-state telephone books, stock quotations, the foreign language collection, out-of-town newspapers and the library's community information and referral service.

Michigan Bell Co. is the local supplier of TDD machines. For information on obtaining one, call Michigan Bell at 1-800-483-3141, a TDD line, or 1-800-482-8254, a voice line.
