

Glitter — the jewels of spring focus on form

"There are four important categories in jewelry for spring and summer," says Jo Qualls, president of Charles W. Warren. "Silver leads the pack, followed by pearls, gold and then onyx or black jade combined with silver or gold."
 "There is not just one fashionable look in jewelry," Qualls said. "Jewelry is very simple or very large and bold or very ornate and full of color. Large gemstone rings, rather than just the all-diamond look, are very important."

 Jewelry will be used to create a focal point and this year, especially, the bare skin of summer calls for a lot of jewelry, Qualls said.
 Big earrings are very important as are large link chains. Texture on high polish or texture on texture is this season's newest look.

EXTRA THANKS to Park West Galleries in Southfield where the color features were photographed. The gallery has many qualities that have enabled it to attract exhibitions of important and talented artists, both local and international. A special thanks to all the restaurants and businesses that let us take photographs on location as part of the image of "Going Places." And thanks to all the businesses that provided models and the fashions to bring the new season to our readers.
