'Bring Back Antiques,' Woman Says

An old, grey-black milk can with a faded gold eagle on the side, and a three-foot high blue ceramic urn once decorated the front porch of the Frank Hutchings residence, 24065 Gill Road, Farmington.

That is, until Wednesday night when someone swiped the treasured antiques from their places of pride among the Hutchings' porch.

Mrs. Hutchings told the Farmington Enterprise and Observer Thursday that she'd like to get them back "for sentimental reasons."

Child Expert Has Date With Middle Belt PTA

FARMINGTON Disrespectable adults are wasting this country's greatest natural resource, says James E. Joyce, noted cybernetic expert, who is the featured speaker at Middlebelt PTA's opening program at 8 p.m. Oct. 6.

Normal healthy children are highly intelligent human beings, possessed of great creative qualities, and merit the respect of the adult world, says Joyce.

AS HEAD OF Universal Cybernetics Inc. of Rochester, Joyce is an enthusiastic exponent of children and parents growing and developing together.

He conducts Gifted Child Dynamics workshops for parents and their pre-school children. "This can be the happiest and most productive time of your life," Joyce says, "if you recognize the creativity in your children; respect it, and encourage it."

Joyce, whose background covers a wide variety of fields from systems engineering to industrial engineering, feels that too often adults show more respect for computers than they do their own children.
