Freezing food is quick

Vegetable gardening is a popular American pastime but all too often, gardens can mean too much of a good thing all at once.

Freezing is the most popular way to preserve food. It maintains the natural color, fresh flavor and nutrient value of fresh food. It is also fast and easy and requires little equipment other than a freezer.

Some vegetables, such as green onions, hot peppers, sweet peppers, whole tomatoes (scalded to remove skin), green tomatoes and vinegar-style cole slaw, can be frozen without Banching. This cuts the preparation time.

All other vegetables need to be.

tion time.

All other vegetables need to be blanched before being frozen. Blanching is a vital step. It entails heating the vegetables in boiling water or steam for a few minutes to stop the action of enzymes that would cause toughness and poor quality after one or two months oof freezer storage. Recommended heating time varies with the type and size of vegetables.

Using boilable bags to blanch and freeze vegetables has become very popular. This allows you to process, freeze and cook all in the same bag and produces the best-tasting vegetables. Because the vegetables don't come into contact with water, they retain their color, texture and nutrients.

Some vegetables, however, are not recommended for the boilable bag method. They include whole carrots, whole beets, broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage and turning caooage and turings.

Prepare the vegetable as you wish and pack about four bags at a time. Drop them into beiling water, cover and blanch for twice the length of time suggested for conventional blanching. Renove the bags from blanching, Renove the too bling water and place in ice the boiling water and place in lee aware. When all the bags have reached the Ice water stage, cool for reached the Ice water stage, cool for mancher 10 minutes and freeze in a single layer.
