

Volunteers sought for march

Mothers may get top billing but fathers do it, too. So do grandparents and single folks and teen-agers. They all participate in the Mothers March against birth defects to help the March of Dimes.

Marchers won't be hitting the streets until January but recruiting is going on now. It takes a lot of people to cover southeast Michigan and the March of Dimes is hoping you'll help.

Marchers are asked to go door to door in their own neighborhood. It takes just about an hour to cover the 10 to 12 houses you'll be assigned. All marchers are given a kit containing instructions, identification and March of Dimes public health information.

As a marcher, you not only help raise vital research funds for the March of Dimes, you also carry an important health message to your friends and neighbors.

LITERATURE ON good prenatal care and the part it plays in producing healthy babies is left at every home in the march.

Because of thousands of Mothers March volunteers in southeast Michigan the March of Dimes is able to reach a wide audience on a person-to-person basis.

In southeast Michigan, the March of Dimes lends financial support to organizations like the Pontiac Health Care Center, the Corner Health Center in Ypsilanti and the Young Adult Clinic at Henry Ford Hospital.

The March of Dimes promotes prenatal care in individual communities and is also working to combat teenage pregnancy in a variety of ways, including a recent series of teen conferences held in the Port Huron area.

It takes so little time and reaches so many people. Become an active part of the fight against birth defects. Join the Mothers March. To volunteer your time, call Betty Gehring in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties, 423-3200.

Post office paints overhauls boxes

Have you recently noticed bright, shiny blue boxes located on the corner of many streets in your city? Did you notice a familiar red, white and blue decal with an eagle boldly represented on the box? Did the box have a schedule of collection times posted on it? Farmington Postmaster Kenneth Harris hopes you have.

As part of a program titled "Paint a New Image," all 104 collection boxes in the Farmington area underwent a major overhaul. To accomplish this, weather-beaten boxes were sanded to a smooth finish and new paint and decals applied to present a pleasant appearance. With collection boxes a part of all communities, the U.S. Postal Service established this program to ensure that these boxes add to the beauty of the area.

This program is a part of the "New Postal Service" campaign, in which plans by the Postal Service call for other changes in lobby appearance, retail service oriented programs and products aimed directly to the needs of their customers.

So the next time you go to your local collection box, take a look at the shiny paint, new decal and convenient collection times, and remember that you, a valued customer of the U.S. Postal Service are the reason for this improvement, Harris said.

2 Hills residents volunteer

Two Farmington Hills residents have accepted volunteer positions for the United Foundation 1986 Torch Drive.

The announcement was made by John Betti, executive vice president, technical affairs and general manager, Ford Motor Co., and general chairman of this year's fund-raising campaign.

They are: Robert Renard, general manager, Climate Control Division, Ford Motor Co. — as northwest unit co-chairman.

Paul Guy, director, Product Quality Office, Plastic Products Division, Ford Motor Co. — as northwest unit region chairman.

The northwest unit is part of community campaigns that solicit businesses, offices and individuals in the tri-county area.

Torch Drive volunteers will be raising money to respond to increased needs in the community. The cost for providing services has increased and requests for service help continues. There are also many new agencies requesting funding from the Torch Drive.

The reporting phase of the 38th annual Torch Drive will run from Oct. 14 through Nov. 6. The UP Torch Drive raises operating money for 143 charitable organizations in the tri-county area. Last year's Torch Drive raised $66.1 million. The goal for this year's campaign is $59 million.
