

Poplack Gallery houses ancient arts

The Poplack Gallery at Detroit Institute of Arts, named for the Birmingham couple who underwrote it, features the ancient arts of Peru, Central America and Mexico made before the 16th-Century Spanish conquest. Pictured at far left is a PreColumbian Olmec jade sculpture. The gold ornament with two aquatint figures is from the Diquis region, Costa Rica, 1,000-1,500 A.D. The gallery is part of a new complex on the main floor created for the permanent exhibit of traditional arts of African, Oceanic and New World cultures.

Dinner dance benefits DIA

The second annual celebration of Polish cuisine, "Feast at the Renaissance," a benefit for Detroit Institute of Arts will be held Saturday evening, Oct. 25.

The Renaissance Club on the 36th floor of the Renaissance Center, will be the setting for this sampling of the best of Polish food.

The reason for the celebration is the $25,000 pledge to the Detroit Institute of Arts made by the Friends of Polish Art. This dinner-dance will help fulfill the promise of the gift to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Friends of Polish Art next year.

"Feast at the Renaissance" begins with wine and hors d'oeuvres at 6:30 p.m. Dinner with music and entertainment begins at 8 p.m. with dancing later.

Tickets are $100 per person or $150 each for patrons. For information, call 922-3805.
