

Imagine...

A totally integrated music system that is simplistically beautiful, luxurious to the touch, brilliantly engineered, surprisingly affordable — with a music quality that defines technology's value.

Enter the Beosystem 5500: A fully integrated remote controlled system of components from Bang & Olufsen which includes: a linear tracking turntable, a compact laser disc player, a fully auto-reverse cassette deck and a powered receiver allowing total control of the system from anywhere in your home.

This is accomplished through the companion Master Control Panel, a wireless remote control unit that can travel with you to any room in your home and still allow you the freedom to communicate with and control your Beosystem 5500.

What a difference such access will provide; more often than not it will be the reason music is in the air.

While the Beosystem 5500 is the most technologically advanced system of its kind, its most important statement is its music quality, not its technology — it is simplicity and performance that is the hallmark of the Beosystem 5500.

Come in and audition the system today.
