IN A SEASON of variables, there are bound to be a great many "ins" and a few "outs." As women and men evolve from fashion dictatorship into a personal style all their own, a few little "ins" can add a lot. On the other hand, "outs" can detract from their image, designating fashions no-nos.

So, for your edification and future fashion reputation, here are this season's mostly "ins" and a few "outs."

FOR HER: "Ins" include crinolines, headbands, denim, leather and reptile accessories, tortoise-shell anything, less jewelry, the neutral leg, cashmere, long coats, bare shoulders, short skirts, long soft skirts, petticoats and lace, short and long jackets, lace pocket squares, sweater sets, bows in the hair, no blouse under the suit jacket, jumpsuits (again), stripes and polka dots, flat shoes, pearls.

"Outs" for her include: wearing his clothes, frizzed hair, glitz, tight, narrow pants, over-accessorizing, drop earrings with ear wires, suntan hosiery, tight silhouettes, too much makeup, strappy dress sandals, tight mini skirts, dark lip liner, short skirts with high heels, jogging shorts, lots of long beads.

FOR HIM: "Ins" include: white and light suits, tie bars, braces (suspenders), patterned, over-the-calf hosiery, pleated trousers, pocket squares, no socks at all with casual wear.

"Outs" for him: short socks, patent leather shoes, colored shirts after 6 p.m.

FOR BOTH: "Ins" include walking, non-impact aerobics, long coats, quality, walking shorts and knee socks, wrinkles (in clothing only), cavalier, broccoli.

"Outs": heavy aerobics, short coats, quantity, Viscomet sunglasses.

Contributing to our "ins and outs" list were Elaine Seltzer, owner of Madeline; mens store owner Thom Leffler; Candace Barker, Hudson's manager of communications; and Alan Teitel of Bloomfield Hills, a nationally recognized trends expert.

Teitel, incidentally, commented that "Detroit is on a par with New York when it comes to setting trends. For example," he said, "hair bows, which are 'in,' got started here as did banana combs, which are now 'out.'"

Other "ins and outs" contributors were Crowley's, Claymore Lioness, Saks Fifth Avenue, Ray and Ida and Claire Pearone.

Asiade Ikewa's easy jersey two-piece dress with tiered flounces signals the new change in mood and shape. $660. Roz & Sherm, Bloomfield Plaza.

mistral

Mix it up with Mistral.
Ups and downs. His or hers.
Any way you wear it.
It's fashion mischief.
