Eager mind digs for knowledge

Dear Mrs. Green:

I am interested in having my handwriting analyzed.

I am a retired successful businessman, having enjoyed success and a nice life.

I hope this is enough handwriting for you to analyze. Thank you.

J.S.,
Plymouth

Dear J.S.:

The first thing I see as I look at your handwriting is a man with an intellectual thrust and an eagerness to learn. Your mind is investigative and critical as it explores and digs for knowledge. You probably ask questions and enjoy reading as a way of obtaining the answers you seek.

Your mind is also open and receptive to new ideas and concepts. And I think you would have good ideas of your own to contribute.

Organizational skills are revealed in handling your daily living. You do not take on more than you can handle. Goals are mostly in the practical realm and within your reach. How-

I am interested in having my handwriting analyzed.
I am a retired successful businessman having ever, a few are geared toward the future and present more challenge.

A SENSITIVE nature makes you vulnerable to personal criticism. You may even anticipate it when none is intended.

At this particular time in your life you are experiencing feelings of not being appreciated. Neither are you finding much enjoyment either in the social or work area.

Seemingly you have been hurt in the past. As a result you have your guard up as a defense mechanism to help insure these hurts do not continue happening to you. The resentment here makes you cautious in your interpersonal relationships.

Your present situation has a way of getting to you at times causing indecision and down moods. But to your credit you "hang in there" and overcome them when they creep in.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. An objective feedback is always welcomed.

AAUW to study need for child care

The Educational Foundation of American Association of University Women has awarded Michigan Division a Research and Projects Grant for 1986-87. Michigan Division will use the $3,000 grant to conduct an assessment to identify the degree of need for child care assistance in Michigan.

Fundamental societal changes have greatly increased the number of working parents and one-parent families whose children are in need of both preschool and after-school supervision.

The AAUW Educational Foundation is a charitable organization that offers support to women to help them achieve their potential through education, training and community service. The Foundation's Research and Projects Grants program, established in 1972, provides seed money grants for women at an individual, branch or division level to pursue community-action projects, research or career-related training. AAUW Branch or Division Public Service Grants support projects that contribute to the well-being of the community-at-large.

In addition, the foundation awards American and International Fellowships to women scholars for study in the U.S. and abroad. The foundation's annual awards and grants exceed $1 million.

The cooperative efforts of AAUW's 175,000 members, as well as bequests and corporate-foundation gifts, have made possible these annual awards and grants.
