Full loops show vivid imagination

Dear Mr. Green:

I can't imagine why I have put off writing to you, even though I was always curious as to what you would say. I'm 27 and right-handed. Also very interested in your response.

*Though I was always what you would say...
right handed also*

Dear D.L.:

A facility with words can be found in your small g's that resemble figure 8's. Your vivid imagination, found in your full loops, can be an asset. This gift may be more apparent in writing than in speaking.

Interpersonal relationships are often handled in a direct manner with limited regard for protocol. You are eager and determined to make your place in the sun. You are a bright young woman and should be able to do this. Currently, however, there are personal insecurities that you must overcome.

CRITICISM is not easy for you to handle. Often you participate in when none is even intended.

Vacillation, in both moods and in your approach to other people, can be observed in your handwriting.

You feel the need to be in a position of control. And you also need to have your own way often. Winning it rather than forcing it is the key to success here.

Routine can soon become boring. Preference would be for an atmosphere of variety. You are a self-starter and would probably be happier in a position with flexible hours as opposed to a daily routine of 9 to 5. Expedience would have a higher priority than exactitude.

It is not easy for others to really know you. To some you are an enigma. And this may be your own choice. Always you would like to be regarded as more sophisticated than you inwardly feel.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed through this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 39251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age and handedness are helpful and feedback is always welcome.
