

Homecoming: queens, floats grab spotlight

The crown of a queen and a hug from a friend made the day for Jocelyn Traillet, the new Harrison High Homecoming queen.

STUDENTS AND alumni from both Harrison and North Farmington high schools showed their spirit last week, as a variety of activities led up to Saturday's homecoming football games, parades and other festivities. Each held daily "theme days," when students dressed in various hats, class colors and college sweatshirts.

At Harrison, activities started Wednesday when junior girls took on senior challengers in powderpuff football, with the senior class winning. Students also participated Friday in their annual field day, when class was pitted against class, and the winning class was pitted against the faculty. "I think they won," said Dave Poelke, assistant principal.

Poelke, who coordinates the homecoming events at Harrison, called the upperclassmen his co-workers. "The seniors really give me tremendous help with this thing," he said.

The Harrison theme was Hollywood, and the senior float of "King Kong" took first place in Saturday morning's parade. Senior Jocelyn Traillet was crowned Homecoming Queen for the 1987-88 year.

At North Farmington, senior Stephanie Green won Homecoming Queen honors during Saturday festivities with a Broadway theme. The junior float of "Little Shop of Horrors" took top honors, and new band director Carl Gippert led the musical efforts of the day.

"Things went very smoothly," said Virginia Lambert, North Farmington teacher, who coordinated the homecoming efforts.

Top honors went to Stephanie Green (above) when she was voted North Farmington High Homecoming queen. Her stepfather, Gary Marcus (standing), escorted Stephanie during the ceremonies.

Harrison seniors impressed the judges and won first place in the Homecoming float competition with this creation depicting King Kong.

Ray Voss, a 1985 graduate of North Farmington, returned to play in the marching band for Homecoming.
