

recreation news

Local television channels — well, all of cable, for that matter — have been notorious for repeat programming. Channel 12 has been no exception since our volume and diversity has allowed us to increase programming hours. So has our opportunity to enhance creative scheduling. "You" the producer have first dibs on the day and hour you would like your program scheduled.

Since our cablecasting schedules are printed in the newspaper, we need two weeks lead time. This means "commitment." A requested regular time slot is a promise that the programs will be ready.

The slogan "The show must go on" is alive and real. This is real television and time has value. Our audiences expect to see what was planned.

Because of the content options, we may have the opportunity to have a "breather" in between repeat performances. Take it from a veteran producer — it is great to sit back and coast for a few weeks when your taping schedule has ended and your shows play on into the month.

Thank you, Jacki Bree, programming director at MetroVision, for working so closely with us. We take pride in our channel. Thank you for caring.
