The holiday season is upon us. Moments for reflection evoke emotional response from sadness to happiness and childlike glee.

Meanwhile our economic world is ever-changing. It takes not a wizard to see that our world is becoming extremely volatile and the common man and woman need to become savvy and cautious. Knowledge of available resources to ensure security and continuity for our families is directly linked to how our communities will fare throughout all change. The communication world, therefore, becomes even more important. Your accessibility to this source is crucial. Fun and games to inquisitive guests now develop into "search for all the facts."

Local television and radio programming discussions and dramatizations which elaborate upon world issues personalized for our understanding will become more prevalent and a viewing priority.
