

Crew essential to successful 'shoot'

The community television crew sponsored by the Department of Special Services covered the Farmington Hills Community Chorus Saturday night.

The experience was enjoyed by all, even the television production staff. They asked that we share the formula for such a rewarding experience.

The Farmington Community Chorus, which is directed by Jim Weston, knew that an understanding of the special characteristics of the event would enable the crew to provide television Channel 12 with a quality as well as enjoyable product.

Michael Garr was the regional producer who coordinated with David Tamm, the cable coordinator for Farmington Hills. They went to the rehearsal to familiarize themselves with the staging; the timing of the music and segments; lighting requirements and other happenings.

The night of the concert found the crew able to comfortably prepare the technical set-up as the director, Michael Garr, and the assistant director were able to know what to anticipate.

This production was produced by Dan Peiter, department head of Farmington Hills's special services. It was produced in cooperation with Metrovision, whose staff consisted of Leigh Fenstra, Jacki Bree and Jason Schwank.

Dave Witt, Todd Whitman and John Hopkins were an integral part of this fine production crew. We salute such a fine cooperative effort by all.

Time to Channel 12. Watch for the special time in our Observer schedule.

Work together to plan ahead and cover an event professionally. Post-production will ensure a great television program.
