Rights are guaranteed

The first 10 amendments to the Constitution of the United States are known as the Bill of Rights and describe the fundamental rights and liberties of each citizen and forbids the government to violate these rights. Many states would have refused to ratify the Constitution without these rights guaranteed. The Bill of Rights was adopted as a single unit on Dec. 15, 1791. State constitutions also contain a bill of rights. The Quakerstown Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution urges us all to read the Constitution of the United States of America, and to study these amendments.
