

Faculty music series opens tomorrow

Guitarist Michael Stockdale and flutist Laura Larson will inaugurate the 1988 Faculty Artist Series with a recital at 8 p.m., Friday at the Institute of Music and Dance. It will be at IMD's Cultural Center location, John R. and Kirby in Detroit.

Stockdale is chairman of the guitar department at the Institute of Music and Dance. A native of Great Britain, he has received acclaim for solo appearances on both sides of the Atlantic.

For his program, Stockdale has selected solo works for guitar by Bach, Sor and Villa-Lobos. Larson is a former member of the Miami Philharmonic and twice was a winner in the National Flute Association Young Artist Competition. She joined the IMD faculty after recently graduating from the Talent Education Institute of Matsumoto, Japan.

Joining Larson will be harpist Keratin Allvin for performances of works by Miki, Villa-Lobos, Bonif, Flotibus, and Boehm.

Recitals are scheduled for March 18 and April 22. Pianist Steven Rosenfield will perform works by Brahms, Bach, Haydn, Schubert and Fillmore in March.

The April recital will feature pianist Deborah Berman, violinist Patricia Gurin, and cellist Debra Fayrolan in works of Mendelssohn, Mozart and Prokofiev.

Ample free, guarded parking is available. Tickets for the Friday performance are $6 and $3 for students and seniors and may be purchased at the door.

Along with the College of Art and Design, the Institute of Music and Dance is an affiliate of the Center for Creative Studies.
