Art is cornerstone of design

HE WONDERS OF Sarasota and its barrier islands never cease. One of them is the fact that you meet people from home whom you have not had the pleasure of meeting while at home.

Two very interesting people we met recently were Irving and Cell Feldman. If any of you readers are collectors of line art, you are familiar with their gallery on Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield. This is the place to find Chagall, Picasso and Miro — the artists of the '80s and '80s.

A casual meeting at the home of mutual friend led to a dinner invitation to the Feldmans' beach house on Slesta Key. Their house is just what you would expect to find when you think of a beach house on the Gulf of Mexico. Casual, natural, unassuming are the adjectives that come to mind. It is placed in a natural setting on the beach with a spectacular view of the guil.

Astral 2 No. 1

When newspaper readers all across the country requested plans from the 1987 Landmark Home Design Series, they told a great deal about the current American character, how we live our lives and what we want for our families. While the responses reflect a nearly infinite variety of home design choices, there emerged a consensus of an overhelming majority that clearly defines the No. 1 American home design of 1987. It's the Astral 2 — shown at the right — and it continues the trends of the last few years (oward a sense of country living. For a study plan of the Astral 2 (222-52), write to Landmark Designs, P.O.
