

Art exhibit aids homeless

"Art for The Homeless" a multi-media preview art exhibit to benefit the Detroit Rescue Mission, will be 7:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesday at Englander's Birmingham showroom.

The exhibit will feature paintings, sculptures, ceramics and photographs from some of the area's most prominent artists. The exhibit will also showcase a special gallery of interpretive art that relates to the plight of the homeless. All of the art is for sale and will be on display at Englander's showroom April 27 to May 6.

Proceeds from the $50 per person preview tickets and sale of the art will go directly to the rescue mission, a non-profit organization. Englander's is underwriting the event.

The Detroit Rescue Mission has aided Detroit's homeless for 75 years. Last year, the mission provided more than 45,000 beds, 145,000 hot meals and a number of rehabilitation programs for the homeless. Currently the Detroit Rescue Mission is in the process of starting a woman's shelter for this fastest-growing segment of the homeless population.

"Through this unique fund-raising event, Englander's hopes to make a difference in the lives of some of Detroit's unfortunate homeless people," said Barrett S. Wayburn, Englander's president.

The store is at 501 E. Maple at Hunter, Birmingham. For ticket information, contact Cara Cole, 540-7557.

Italian pianist to give recital

Italian pianist Almerindo d'Amato will be presented in concert at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Detroit Institute of Arts Recital by the Consulate of Italy in Detroit and the museum's Performing Arts Department.

The program will be works by contemporary Italian composers - Giuseppe Martini, Francesco Busoni, Ottorino Respighi, Alfredo Casella and Luigi Dallapiccola.

D'Amato is professor of music (specializing in piano) at the Conservatory of Santa Cecilia, Rome. He is known throughout Europe for his "concerto presentato," a form of musical encounter in which he provides commentary about the program selections to the audience.

Tickets, $10, are available only through the DIA ticket office, 9:30 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. daily, 832-2730, or at the door.
