Top scholars make the grade

Kids don't want to learn anymore?

Kids don't want to learn anymore? Schools can't teach? Bah, humbug. The people saying those things never had to pick the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers Academic All-Star team. This year, the team is especially deep, filled with the best and brightest of 23 responding public and private schools in the Observer area.

Places like Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of Michigan and Cornell will get these stars for the next four years. After that, their chosen fields will be richer for their addi-

The 15 members of the fourth annual Observer & Eccentric Newspapers Academic All-Star team were selected based on high school grade point average com-bined with national test scores.

Twenty-seven students were honorable mention. Academic All-Stars in their own right, they missed out on the first string only because of the depth there. Here are this year's academic all-stars in order of ranking.

Suzanne Stokes

SUZANNE STOKES Bishop Borgess, Redford

It's on to the Air Force Academy for this all-A student, where she plans to ma-jor either in aeronautical or astronomical engineering while learning how to fly.

Stokes plays the piano, skis, is active in a variety of volunteer community groups and somehow found the time to work part time at a local restaurant. In addition, she was co-president of the sophomore class was contented to the sopioidary class and the Spanish Club.

Honors include the Madame Curie Award, the National Honor Society, being named a National Merit semifinalist, the All-Catholic Prep Bowl Award and a recital award by the Livonia Piano Teachers Forum

Thanks is due, said Stokes, to Judith Beliovary, a teacher who influenced her academic career the most.

Brendan Carney

BRENDAN CARNEY Stevenson High School, Livonia

Carney is a leader. He has led his class with all A's, and he has been captain of the varsity basketball and soccer teams, in addition to heading the Quiz Bowl team. When not immersed in athletics, he sings when not immersed in attentis, he sings well enough to be a member of the Village Singles, a vocal ensemble. Uncertain of a major, he will attend Michigan and plans to earn at least a mas-ter's degree. A National Merit finalist, Carney credits his father for much of his

"He never pushed me to excel," he said. "Instead, he gave me a living example of what the benefits of hard work are."

MINAL HAJRATWALA Canton High School, Plymouth

An all-A student, Hajratwala plans on a career in journalism and is a good enough communicator to have appeared on an NBC television show last year to discuss the issue of dress codes in public high Hajratwala is a National Merit finalist.

Hajratwala is a National Merit finalist, a member of Who's Who in the United States, a former Plymouth Rotary student of the month, a first-place winner in the Civitan essay contest and a Rensselaer medalist in science and math from Renselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Heather L. Burrows

HEATHER L. BURROWS Churchili High School, Livonia

Burrows has been awarded a scholar-ship from Kalamazoo College, has been nominated for a scholarship at the Univer-sity of Michigan and is awaiting word on acceptance from Harvard and Northwestern. Such are the awards for a high school tenure that included all A's, track, cross country and the National Honor Society.

She was also a member of the YMCA synchronized swim team, took plane lessented to the control of the country of the cou sons for five years, was active in church, a member of the Michigan Sesquicentennial Committee and the statistician for the basketball and football teams at Churchill, all of which makes her a two-time mem-ber of the All-Star team, and one of just two students returning for a second year of Observer honors.

Goals? To major either in blochemistry or to double major in blology and chemistry, with a doctorate eventually and a career in scientific research, possibly genetices.

She credits her parents, Denise and Ma-jor James Burrows, with having the big-gest influence in her academic career.

"My parents have always supported me in my endeavors. They have encouraged me to take demanding classes and to strive to do my best in all that I can do,"

Robert Gibson

ROBERT GIBSON Lutheran High School Westland, Westland

An all-A student, Gibson plans on a ca-reer in nuclear physics and computer science.

Well rounded, he played varsity base-ball, has acted in eight plays and directed one and was president of the Thesplans, sang in the concert choir and with a com-munity chamber group and was vice pres-ident of the National Honor Society.

A National Merit finalist, Gibson credits his seventh- and eighth-grade math teach-er, Allen Stoll, for instilling in him his love

DOUGLAS DONALDSON Plymouth Salem High School

A B-plus as a freshman is all that kept Donaldson from an all-A high school ca-reer. A heavy and productive school work load didn't keep him from extracurricular activities — he was active in church, the Model United Nations, the National Honor clotty, the Quis Bowl, the Science Olympiad, the Spanish Club and was on the staff of the school radio station.

Honors include Plymouth Elks Club stu-
