

Westown Lions witness demise of a telecaster

Jac LeGoff, Channel 4 anchorman, agreed to be the willing victim of a make-believe murder plot. Everything seemed to be running smoothly. It seemed like great fun until it was revealed that TV anchor people are prone to make enemies.

LeGoff has his share of enemies. There are the petty jealousies of other TV reporters trying to make it to the number-one spot. Would one of them make it over his dead body?

How about Tony Cisternella, anchor for a rival station? He is more than a little upset because LeGoff scooped him on the big one and won Best TV

News Award.

Or what about LeGoff's own snooping around in underworld activities while he's been trying to talk his station into doing a Mini-Expose series.

And to complicate matters, it's just been learned that a couple of people coming to dinner at Vladimir's this month are noted mob figures.

Will the mock murder turn into a real murder? Will there be a mystery within a mystery? There are plenty of suspects. At least one seated at every table.

"DEMISE OF A Telecaster," an interactive dinner and murder mystery enactment in which the guests turn super-sleuth, is Westown Lions Club's major fund-raiser of the year.

The action begins when guests assemble for a reception at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, in Vladimir's, continues throughout dinner and on into the night until the culprit is brought to bay by one of the guests.

The guests, who become an intrinsic part of the production, will have the opportunity to talk with the characters, dine with them, and ask any questions that might solve the mystery.

One of the problems, however, is sometimes it will be difficult to distinguish between the performers and the guests, which only adds to the mystery.

There will be super prizes for the super sleuths. The production is staged by homicide Host.

Westown Lions Club supports Leader Dog School, Michigan Eye Bank, Penrichon Center, Silent Children and community organizations. Individuals and families in need of financial or other assistance.

Reservations are $40 per person. Checks can be sent to Westown Lions Club, 27777 Franklin Road, Suite 950, Southfield 48034.

Calls will be taken by Don Schmalz, the chapter's president, at 646-5259.

Professor is pulpit guest

David Whitelaw, professor at the University of South Africa and newly appointed chairman of the Religion Department, Olivet Nazarene University, will speak at First Church of the Nazarene Sunday, Oct. 2.

The services begin at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. The church is at 21260 Haggerty in Farmington Hills.

Storytellers join for festival of tales

"Storytelling '88" begins with registration at 12:30 p.m. and winds up late in the evening with a session called "Storytellers in Concert" Saturday, Oct. 1, in Henry Ford Community College's Mackenzie Fine Arts Building, Dearborn. The festival is sponsored by Detroit Story League in cooperation with the college.

"Storytelling is an ancient art, now undergoing a renaissance," said

Amy Jackson, speaking for the league. "It is part of the worldwide interest in keeping alive grass-roots folk art in a technological age."

Three prominent storytellers will give workshops, and a "Story Swapping Session" is on the agenda.

Guests can register for afternoon sessions, evening sessions or the entire event. Inquiries are taken by Jackson at 934-8635.

Child care offered to students

The Clarenceville Child Care Program continues registration for full-time and part-time students. You need not be a resident of the school district to enroll. This licensed program includes a balance of activities including concept learning.
