Sorroom said the expects the city council will accept Welday's resignation. A replacement will be appellation of the council of t tageous' to seek all removal from the nine member commission.

As I am sure you are aware, farmington Hills is not immune from the whims of politics and, given the circumstances, I cannot belp but wonder whether this action a specialty given my strong stands in opposition to elivery council or recent tax fand budget policies. Welday sublict of the council's decision to increase taxes by 14 mill.

Soronen suid she would not comment of Welday's references to politics as a reason for requesting his resignation. The request, abe said, was based on his poor attendance city council considered scheduling a public hearing for tonight.

BUT CITY officials discovered they had mailed two letters to the strong address. The two letters were later hand-elivered to his home.

"I checked our boards and commissions book and the one we have has a wrong address," city manager William Costick said. "Our book was william Costick said." Our book was william.

Welday said he received notifica-tion of the council's concern and re-commission by phone from his wife, Rhonda.

Welday criticized Soronen's handling of the situation, particularly the late hand-delivery of her letter, dated Sept. 27. He's also skeptical of the wrong address reason for the late notification of the council's concern.

Weldsy also questions why the city council asked for his resignation. He said that on Sept. 15, the planning commission discussed his impending absence. Only one member, he said, disagreed with the majority that his business obligations should not be held against him.

"The best part was when they all came over to sign the back of my jersey," he said, reliving the mem-ory last week during yet another hospitalization at Children's for in-fection.

CITY OFFICIALS feared an entertainment permit would allow expansion into topless dancing, wet T-shirt contests and other more explicit sexual abows. "Most bars with entertainment permits have the same kinds of ahows," Deadman aded. "It's sexual connotation type of entertainment."

But owner Dennis Page told the city council he did not intend to expand into these areas.
"That's not what I wanted the entertainment permit for," he said. "I didn't know I was doing it illegally. I don't intend to do any of the other things — it's not that kind of a business."

THE CITY HAD a problem with explicit sexual entertain-ment about 20 years ago, in an es-tablishment on Grand River west of downtown.

1928 supervisor recalls Enterprise

Pistons brighten day for 7-year-old

The supervisor of Farmington Township wrote this greeting for the Farmington Enterprise's 60th anniversary edition in 1928. The Enterprise merged with the Observer in 1968. The newspaper's 100th anniversary edition will be included in the Oct. 31 issue.

included in the Oct. 31 issue.

If HAS been with considerable pride that I have watched the growth and development of several institutions in and around Farmington and quite particularly of your valuable paper. In looking back, seemingly but a few years, to the time when Mr. Bloomer conceived the idea of starting a little paper upon Grand River near where Day Dickerson now lives the came to my father for some help, and if my memory serves me right, ewas assisted to the extent of about $200, in the way of a loan and from this small beginning the little paper grew to become one of the outstanding papers of the County.

In 1901 and 1902 it was my privi-lege to own and operate the En-terprise.

One other great feature of this community has been the outstanding demand of the people for improved rands beginning with the gravel roads and from those have followed the cement. As the roads were improved, people were brought in closer touch with the outside, and as a result our churches, our schools and our banks developed rapidly. Immediately following good roads was a rapid advance in land values; this made a demand for electric lights and improved highways, and today this section of the County is an outstanding example of the community progressiveness in civic interest.

The Enterprise has always stood One other great feature of this

The Enterprise has always stood for a constructive policy in all of the above developments and today with its present policy holds a place of leadership in Farmington Township.

Beverly Hills Village Council pres-ident Michael Bouchard was misi-dentified Thursday in a photo ac-companying a story.
