

Election coverage to be offered

Local elections are news priority for Channel 12. Monday, Nov. 7, local election programming will be featured. All day, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., a variety of programs will be broadcast.

Production crews did not magically appear on the scene. Residents interested in the election process initiated the activity. League of Women Voters coordinated several shows in conjunction with city, cable and commission staff. The intent is to encourage diversity in programming to be executed with fairness and balance given to each side of an issue.

You, the resident, must be the initiator. Because our channel is non-commercial, there are no pressures from outside interest groups to dictate the program lineup.

Join us and try. We are here for the purpose of extending this community service to you.

Watch at noon Wednesday, Nov. 9, for election results.

Anesthesiology is option for nurses

In Hollywood's version of an operating scene, a masked doctor tells the patient to breathe deeply and count slowly backward from 100. The patient complies, but barely reaches 95 before drifting off under the effect of an anesthetic.

In reality, patients respond to general anesthesia just as quickly, said David Stasiak, president of the Michigan Association of Nurse Anesthetists. But he said, rather than being a medical doctor, an anesthesiologist, is just as likely to be a certified registered nurse anesthetist.

In the United States, almost half of all anesthetic procedures are supervised by these nurse specialists, a career option for nurses discussed on the Job Show at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 10, on Metrovision cable Channel 12.

With yearly salaries going as high as $45,000 to $50,000, nurse anesthetists are among the highest paid of all nursing specialties, Stasiak said.

The demand for nurse anesthetists will probably increase as more surgery is being done on an outpatient basis. And many physicians who previously administered anesthesia themselves for minor procedures are now choosing to have anesthetists present.

"There are over 80 positions open for certified registered nurse anesthetists in the Detroit-area alone," Stasiak said.

"This profession appeals to a certain type of person," said Christine Zambricki, director of the Nurse Anesthetist Program at Mercy College of Detroit. "They enjoy the autonomy. They can really use their knowledge, rather than just taking orders from someone else."

With that independence comes responsibility, however. Mary Jean Jablonky is a nurse anesthetist who, on a typical day, is involved with three to 10 cases.

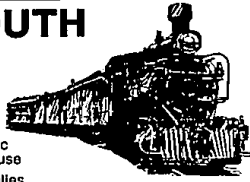

She said her duties include inspecting the machinery and the medications, conducting pre-operation interviews with patients and administering the anesthesia and monitoring the patient's condition.

Certified registered nurse anesthetists must have a bachelor's degree in nursing and one year's experience in a critical care unit prior to admittance to a nurse anesthetist program, a two- or three-year course of study. They are required to study the use of anesthetics in a variety of areas, including emergency medicine, obstetrics and pediatrics, as well as in such areas as heart surgery.

"It's a very challenging field," said Sherree Campbell-Harris, a nurse anesthetist, who also teaches at the University of Detroit School of Nursing. "You may be tired at the end of the shift. But you feel good that you've helped people get through a very stressful time."

The Job Show is produced as a public service by the Michigan Employment Security Commission.
