

Dancers perform, lecture students

A unique partnership has been struck between the Southfield Schools and Detroit Dance Collective.

Friday, Nov. 4, at 10:45 a.m., DDC, led by artistic directors Paula Kramer and Barbara Selinger, will perform a new lecture demonstration at Southfield High for students involved in drama, art, music and venture programs.

Last year the company taught and performed at Southfield High School and a children's program was seen at each of Southfield's 10 elementary schools.

Friday's concert is called "Dances and Dancemakers" and focuses on the art and craft of choreography and what inspires a choreographer to create. Following the concert will be a question and answer period in which students may ask anything about dance.

Next week, the dancers will conduct workshops based on material already being taught in their classes including characterizations, vocal readings, sculpture and rhythm studies.

The residency will conclude with an informal showing of student works.

Dances presented by DDC are excerpts from "Requiem for a Star Tamer," based on a painting by Wassily Kandinsky and choreographed by Barbara Selinger; Linda Simmons' "Point-Counterpoint"; a full length fast paced work called "Day for an August Dance," by Paula Kramer; and "Under Wraps" a work created especially for this program that uses colorful, outside bags and elastic that captures the dancers. Featured in this eight member group is Modibo Kelta, noted percussionist who will also accompany some of the classes.

DETROIT DANCE COLLECTIVE is the professional modern dance company in residence at Oakland Community College in Royal Oak where it instructs the credit and non-credit dance programs.

Dance For College Credit Classes are also offered to high school dancers 16 years and older who have two or more years of dance experience in ballet, modern, jazz or ethnic dance.

Audition date for this project is Saturday, Dec. 10, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the OCC Royal Oak campus, room D 205. Classes run Mondays from 4-6 p.m. Jan. 9 through April 24. An informal showing of student works will take place. Instruction will be in modern dance technique, improvisation and composition and will be taught by the directors and members of DDC.

Barbara Selinger, co-director of Detroit Dance Collective, performs a movement from the program to be delivered to arts students at Southfield High Friday.

Guitarist in concert

The Woodward Ballroom at the Embassy Suites Hotel is the site for Southfield's Concerts in the Garden performance by David Grimes, classical guitarist, on Sunday.

At 22, Grimes was on his way to a career as a scientist, after graduating from Cal Tech with a degree in mathematics. While still at Cal Tech, he had an experience that was the seed of a complete and dramatic change in his life. He heard a recording by Andres Segovia.

In the ensuing days, the haunting memory of the recording remained. Although he had no musical background, other than singing in choir, Grimes began studying the guitar and its music with passion and dedication. He sought instruction from notable guitarists Guy Horn and Oscar Ghiglia to develop the finest possible technique to produce the rich full tone that had captivated him from the start.

Over the past few years, Grimes has been a featured soloist at major universities on the west coast and has toured throughout the U.S. and Mexico. Grimes will carry listeners through the unique and personal world of his guitar, from the bold and dramatic to warm and intimate, performing the music of Villa Lobos, Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Francisco Tarrega and J.S. Bach.

The concert at the Embassy Suites Hotel begins at 11:45 a.m. and brunch is served at 11 a.m. Concert and brunch is $9, and concert and coffee only is $3.50. For reservations, call 354-4717.
