Service helps diabetics

One in four people in the United States is touched by diabetes. This means many Farmington residents have, will have, or are close to someone who has the disease. The diabetic needs a steady supply of products for self care and good health. Today more than 100,000 diabetics nationwide take advantage of the convenience of mail order to obtain a complete range of diabetic equipment and supplies, as well as gournet food and desserts, boots and other items to help keep their diabetes under control.

The SugarFree Mail-Order Service for diabetics is the original and largest service for diabetics be original and largest service for diabetics is the original and largest service for diabetics in the original and largest service for diabetics of the summarily by diabetics health professionals, who understand the needs of people with this discastic inventory, handpared the co-directors June Biermann and Barbara Toolovy, is based upon Biermann's 21-year experience as an insulin dependent diabetic. Both women are Cordon-Bieu trained gournet cooks who travel the world looking for foods and other products that make life easier, healthier and happier for the diabetic. The two women have authored hundreds of articles and six books about diabetes, including their just published "The Diabetic Woman."

Many diabetics across the country belong to the SugarFree Association, a networking plan with special discounts, free samples, diabetes identification cards, annual accounting for tax purposes and a multitude of other services for members only.
