Greenfield Village festive for holidays

Greenfield Village is a great place to visit this time of year. You may watch demonstrations — boliday desseris being made at the Edison homestead, bats in the Cohen Milli-nary shop, holiday crafts at the tinsmith shop and printing in the print shop.

insmits shop and printing in the print shop.

Christmas traditions from the period that coincide with the year of the house will be explained in the Costwold Cottage, the Connecticut saltbox, and the Logan County Courrhouse.

The family can participate in making holiday ornaments of a participate autre in the Town Hall and take them bome as souvenira. Also with this building holiday stortes will be told for all to enjoy.

Weather permitting, the ever popular sielgh rides will again be available. The special attractions will continue through New Years Day.

FOR ROSE GROWERS there is a 47-minute video, "For the Love of Roses," subtilled "A Year in the Life of a Rosarian," which explains all aspects of growing roses. The specific care that roses need during each season is demonstrated clearly. Planting, runing, cultivating, and insect and disease control are covered for every type of rose.

This video, written by noted garden writer, Elvin McDonald, and starring Stephen Seanniollo, resarian of the Craniord Rose garden at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, retails for $19.95, plus $3 postage and handling. It can be ordered by calling (718) 622-4433, ext. 339, or by writing Viceos, Brooklyn Botanic Garden, 1000 Washington Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

MANY PEOPLE are extending or planning to expand their gardening hobbies for year long pleasure. Greenhouses & Garden Rooms" ($4.95) plus 80 cents) is another booklet that merit sattention.

There are many new greenhouse systems available and choices may be a bit confusing. This booklet explains various greenhouse and garden rooms and their maintenance. Ideas for window treatments, leantos, free-standing, combined solar/ garden rooms are offered. Information about structures and heating and cooling is included.

Plants such as orchids, that do well in greenhouse conditions are described as are the methods to keep them healthy. The chapter on propa-gation is most informative.

Both booklets can be ordered at the above address or by telephone.
Before bringing the Christmas tree into the house, spray it with an anti-desiceant product to prolong its freshness, keep it well watered, and away from flames. We want this to be a happy Christmas for everyone.
