

DDA appoints resident to post

A Farmington resident has been appointed to serve on the Downtown Development Authority, in a position representing residents of the district.

Merrill Miller, a vocational consultant who lives on Floral Street, has replaced John Donohue. Donohue resigned his DDA seat after being appointed city attorney. State law requires that one member of the DDA board represent those living in the district.

Miller said he is taking his new position seriously, and is seeking ways to best represent the residential sector of the DDA. His first meeting was Dec. 13.

AAA director re-elected

Thomas Duke, a director of Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington and chairman of the First State Bank of Charlevoix, was re-elected to a three-year term as a director of the 1.5-million member AAA of Michigan at the group's annual membership meeting.

Facilities at community colleges, including an administrative assistant to the president at Oakland Community College. He has served as an executive recruiter, and energy coordinator with a human services agency and in earlier years was a high school counselor.

He has published articles in several education journals, and has been involved in activities in a number of communities.

Miller holds a master's degree in education from Northwestern University in Illinois and a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University. He did additional post-graduate work at Michigan State, Wayne State and Columbia University in New York.

since 1975 and board chairman in 1984-85, is a third-generation builder-developer and past president of the Builders Association of Metropolitan Detroit.

The Charlevoix resident served five years on the Farmington Township Board of Trustees.
