

Baroque concert is valentine tradition

Handel's baroque, pastoral "Acis and Galatea" will be performed on reproduction baroque instruments at 8 p.m. Friday in Oakland University's Vassar Recital Hall.

This Love Concert XII, a Valentine's Day tradition, will be the official debut of the new Huggitt family collection of baroque instruments recently bought by the university.

This will be as historically authentic a performance as possible, directed by Lyle Nordstrom said. Arias and obbligatos will be ornamented in baroque fashion.

THE PART of Galatea will be sung by Elicia Hargis, OU alumna and a professional singer from Boston. She has toured with the Boston Camerata as a soprano soloist, as well as with other groups specializing in early and contemporary music.

David Troiano will sing the role of Acis. He teaches voice at Macomb Community College and performs regularly in the metropolitan area.

John Paul White, an OU faculty member, will be heard in the role of the giant, Polyphemus. He has performed with opera companies and symphony orchestras in West Germany and Switzerland as well as in parts of the United States.

Members of the Oakland Choral and the musicians of Ars Musica, alumni and students, will be participating.

Nordstrom, a specialist in early music, is founder and co-director of The Institute of Swanite Alley. The most recent recording he directed and performed on won a Gramophone magazine music award nomination.

For tickets and information, call Center for the Arts box office, 370-3012, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Free, lighted parking is available at Varner Hall.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.
