

Political Club Ban Still Pushed

Political clubs would be banned in Clarenceville public schools if the board of education adopts a revised set of policies and procedures.

The board will meet Thursday (June 4) at 8 p.m. in the board office at 28830 W. Eight Mile, Farmington, for discussion and a vote.

The revisions were proposed by a four-man committee that included Supt. David McDowell and board members

Martin Wechsler, Robert Erickson and Raymond Chaiken.

The revision was prompted, in part, by a recent application from students and faculty advisors to form a Student Mobilization Committee in the high school.

UNDER A heading of "Political Action Organizations," the proposed policy says:

"A political action organization is defined as one having a commitment to a single political advocacy which may or may not lead to collective political action.

"The board believes that such organizations have no place in the Clarenceville schools and will not allow them to become sponsored clubs or use the school facilities in any way.

"This policy does not prohibit political study and discussion within school sponsored organizations so long as such study and discussion is characterized as having a commitment to learning about all sides of the issues and does not lead to collective political action.

The basic philosophy is that "the schools do not TEACH controversial issues. Rather they provide opportunities for their study."

A SECTION on school clubs puts them "directly under the control of school authorities.

Such clubs shall not be associated with or sponsored by any of the following:

- 1. Political parties.
 - 2. Political action groups.
 - 3. Any organization which denies membership on the basis of race, creed, color or religion.
- "Every school club shall be sponsored by a member of the faculty approved by the principal of the school. All meetings shall be held on the campus..."
