

Seniors putting shine on cable TV spotlight

When you talk to the mature adults of our community, they have a certain energy and sparkle in their eyes. Such examples are the producers, crew and talent of the following shows: Senior Adult Exercise, Senior Messenger, Seniors on the Move (Romance at 80) and Senior Advantage.

Even the new Novl series, "Novl Talkin' History," features people who have made the city happen. Producers of this series are Cindy Stewart and Todd Whitman.

Another exhilarating program is Farmington Focus. John Enright of SWOCC produces and directs this monthly program. SWOCC intern Tracey Thompson, a Wayne State University graduate, hosts Downtown Development Authority director Wendy Stripp Sittsamer and guest Merrill Miller, a DDA board member. The topic is the city of Farmington, present and past improvements.

Then, Sandy Inch hosts guest Dick Allen, state business ombudsman. They discuss advocacy of Michigan business and the techniques for cutting through bureaucratic red tape to accomplish independent business needs.

Channel 12 — the programming of the people who have found the fountain of youth.
