● Bowling tip of the week: Stay in shape. You will bowl better. If you're carrying around a few extra pounds, this definitely will not help your bowling.

Excess weight may make it more difficult to keep up a good balance line, and it also can throw off your timing. Exercise and diet are important, because eating the right foods will not only improve your health, but increase your bowling scores as well.

Salem harbors known track talents

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Like any team in preseason stages, Plymouth Salem has its share of uncertainties regarding possible individual and group contributions to the coming campaign.

Roger Parry and the long-distance runners are not to be counted among those unknowns, however.

Parry is a senior whom the Rocks will count heavily upon. In his first year of track and field, he emerged as one of Salem's top performers last year.

He placed third in the high jump at the Western Lakes Activities Association meet after reaching a height of 6 feet, 3 inches, but he went out at 6-4 a couple times and is a consistent 6-4 jumper.

Parry will be an asset primarily in "specialty events," according to coach Gary Balconi, since he can also long jump and run the hurdles.

Salem's cross country team was among the WLAAs contenders last fall, and many of those team members are running track.

SENIORS SCOTT Stryker and Bob Anzivino, juniors Brendon Masterson, Dave Hamway, Mike Barretta, Greg Christensen and Sean Speakman and sophomores Mike Patterson and John Thomas make distance running the team's obvious strength entering the season.

"At this point it is," Balconi said. "I told them at the beginning of the practice, we're counting on them to get us going, because we have a lot of holes to fill."

"I know those kids, and I know what they're doing on the track," he added. "All of them are running together in a pack, so when we put them in a relay they're going to do pretty well."

In addition to the relay distance runners, a pair of juniors coming off successful winter-sport seasons, Jeff Gold (basketball) and Brian Burlison (wrestling) will supplement the corps of veteran trackmen.

The sprint events will be more of a question mark, but the Rocks do have some good ones, most notably junior Steve Burlison, who placed fifth in the 200-meter dash at the WLAAs meet and will be a key man anchoring relays.

"Steve is the one we're counting on most based on his sophomore performance," Balconi said. "You have to put someone in there who can catch people, and Steve is the one we're going to put there."

The Rocks might not have the outstanding sprinter they did two years ago in Brian Neubardt, but they will have Dope.

SENIORS RANDY Phil and Dave VanHoose, juniors Pat Bowie, who led off the 400 relay, Mike Rafali, Todd Marsee, Todd Cimino and Scott Robertson and sophomores Joe Pawlaska and Matt Perron are returning sprinters. Plus, freshmen John Borowich and Leon Hitter show promise, Balconi said.
