Museum back in operation

The Farmington Historical Ma-seum, 23835 Grand River, has re-opened for the year.

Al present the visiting hours re-main 1-5 p.m. on the first Sanday of the month and every Wednerday afternoon. Special arrangements can be made for groups that can not meet the regular schedule.

With a polley of bringing differ-ent collections to the museum, the museum is exhibiting American In-dian artifacts from the collection of Del Corvell; presidential and political memorabilia as compiled by the Quahertown Questers; and a doil collection formerly owned by Mrs. Max Huett and presented to the museum by the Farmington Historical Society.

Recently, the museum receive bound copies of the Farmington Santerprise dating from 1941 through 1857, a gift from Keith Shaw of Alma. These copies are available for viewing or study dur-ing regular museum hours.

THE MUSEUM, like many community organizations, exists through the generosity of time given by many volunteers. The museum needs volunteers for many chores among them being docents, those that conduct tours of the nu-seum; registrars, those that record and process the many gifts of arti-facts and memorabilla to the mu-

If you are interested and have time to give, contact the museum during regular hours or contact Dick Carvell, 476-6257, Nancy Leonard, 470-4125; if the gardens are your interest contact Marge Eirschele, 474-9158.

Eirschele, 474-9158.

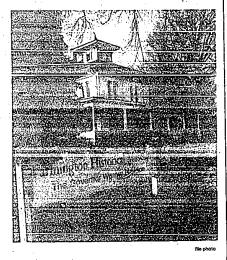

The museum is sorking items from the late 1890s or early 1990s.

"One must remember that items even from the present will some day be history and recorded accounts of events and happenings of today will become the history that our descendents will treasure in the future," Carvell said.

If there were quantizer about the

the future," Carvell said.

If there are questions about the suitability of a proposed gift, give the muscum saiff an opportunity to evaluate and determine the aptraces
of an item. "Farmington area has much in its proud past that should be retained for the future and where better to retain those items than at the Parmington Historical Muscum," Carvell said.

The Fermington Historical Museum has re-opened to the pub-lic for the season. The public can tour the former mansion of Gov. Warner the first Sunday of each month 1-5 p.m. and every Wednesday afternoon.
